Take Advantage of Summertime Pace to Start Planning for Your Building Project

Is your church or school thinking about an addition or new building project? The summer months may be the best time to start planning and organizing for a capital project. Use the (relatively) quieter time and slower pace to set up committees, retain professional consultants and lay the foundation so that your church or school is ready to get up to speed quickly when fall rolls around. Key committees to organize include a building committee, a development committee for fund raising, and a finance committee to establish fiscal oversight.
